Today's market figures as compared to last week showed all weight class average prices from 400 lbs and down ended mostly steady while those classes over 400 lbs ended fully $6 to $10 lower. Some lower grade classes were met with very little demand and were even lower.

Slaughter cows today finished around $4 weaker with the slaughter bulls showing $8 lower.

Cooler weather, seasonal feeder calf health problems and mounting death losses continue to plague the market prices as uncertainty continues to dominate and stifle the feeder calf demand. The market continues to adjust feeder calf prices to compensate for this.

Reminder we will be starting the sale at 11:00 on Tuesdays during the remainder of the year
