Compared to last week's market; all classes of feeder steers and heifers ended mostly steady to $3 weaker on the plainer classes. Slaughter cows and bulls continue to remain under pressure as the marketing numbers continue to remain large.

Higher feed and fertilizer cost along with the continuing drought is stifling both the grazing and corn areas along with normal seasonal animal health problems this time of the year. Although aggressive, stocker buyers continue to show caution in their purchasing.

We are moving our starting time up to 11:00 throughout the remainder of the year due to increasing volume. Slaughter cows will sell first.
